

Editorial

I became the managing editor of Annales Universitatis Paedagogicae Cracoviensis Studia Mathematica in 2006. Running the journal in the open access model appeared a little revolutionary at this time. Next years showed that this was a right decision which attracted new authors and significantly improved the journal visibility and impact. In 2009 the journal appeared for the first time on the list B of the Polish Ministry of Science and Higher Education. Articles started to be reviewed in the American Mathematical Society service Mathematical Reviews and the European Mathematical Society service zbMATH.

The international editorial board was established and expanded stepwise so that it consists now of 8 active editors. Since 2013 the journal is co-published by de Gruyter. It was accepted in the Directory of Open Access Journals in 2013. In 2016 the journal was awarded the DOAJ Seal. It has been a valuable achievement to conclude the 10 years period of service.

I take this opportunity to thank my colleagues and collaborators. I owe a lot to Władysław Wilk, who introduced me to the editorial job and made the online model possible. I thank Paweł Solarz who served as the Editorial Secretary and Magdalena Piszczek, who took care of typesetting. Many thanks go to Wydawnictwo Naukowe UP and de Gruyter for constant support in publishing the journal timely. While remaining part of the editorial team, I am very glad to pass over the lead to the next generation.

It is a great honour, a privilege and an obligation to take over the Managing Editor post. As an author, I know how important are quick, accurate and meaningful reports from the referees. As an editor I will put great effort in treating the manuscripts timely and fairly and to accept those recommended manuscripts which have potential to serve the international mathematical community.

In 2017 Annales Universitatis Paedagogicae Cracoviensis Studia Mathematica has been accepted to Clarivate Analytics - Emerging Sources Citation Index. This has already resulted in an increase of submissions, which in turn allows for more selective procedures. The editorial team has been joined by Beata Hejmej, who in an energetic manner takes care of fulfilling the two main objectives mentioned above. With my fellow editors I am anxious to welcome new authors and high quality manuscripts in the months and years to come.
